

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas

As the end of the year draws closer, we'd like to wish all our customers - past, present and future - a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

2014 has been a very successful year for Avanti, and we've made some great developments that mean we can provide an even better service for our customers...

- Successfully installing more systems worldwide than ever before, streamlining our customers' production lines
- Welcoming Ian Drummond-Smillie, our new Sales Director, into the management team. Ian brings with him over 25 years' experience in the industry and is an expert in putting customers first
- Investing significantly in our manufacturing facility in Furness Vale

With the economy finally picking up, investment in UK corrugated manufacture is increasing, so things are looking bright for 2015.

As a result we have several exciting projects lined up to help our customers in the coming year too...

- The introduction of an engineering support service ensuring expert help is always on hand
- A new emergency helpline, because we know that if something goes wrong, every minute counts

Look out for more on these changes over the coming months.
